When it comes to homeware, good design is not an optional extra

TEE UP ▲ Vanity stand

Vanity should not be a sin if it gets results, and we're certainly not repentant enough to renounce Air Division's vanity stand. The Singaporean company specialises in sustainable wooden furniture and high-quality craftsmanship, resurrecting antique references and giving them a contemporary edge. 'Sprout' vanity stand, $935, by Air Division, www.airdivision.com

FLUID MOVEMENT Zaha Hadid tap

Zaha Hadid was never one to go with the flow — until now. Applying her signature swoop to a tap for new British brassware manufacturer Triflow Concepts, Hadid plays on the movement of water to create a fluid, ergonomically fine faucet. Tap, £4,900, by Zaha Hadid for Triflow Concepts, tel: 44.1708 526361 (UK), www.triflowconcepts.com

CABINET RESHUFFLE ▲ Sideboard

There's a fine line between waste and taste when it comes to vintage furniture, but an eye for craftsmanship and style is all it takes to draw it. And Schubladen ('drawers' in German), a shop in Berlin, features found drawers from Franziska Wodicka's choice hoard of over 800. 'Möbel 41/02' sideboard, €3,570, by Schubladen, www.schubladen.de

GIVE A TOSS ▲ Serving spoons

Here's a way to turn your guests green with envy and, for a colour-coordinated table, have them match the salad: get a set of Konstantin Grcic's 'Accento' salad servers. After all, it's common knowledge, when it comes to slaving over a salad bowl, a chef is only as good as his tools. 'Accento' salad servers, €45 per pair, by Konstantin Grcic, for Serafino Zani, www.serafinozani.it
